Dies Seeks Showdown with Roosevelt on Communists

Will Ask President To State Position on Bill To Register Radicals

Declares Curb on Organizations with International Affiliations Is Absolutely Necessary

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said today that he would put President Roosevelt the "direct question" of supporting the committee's latest proposal for exposing "foreign affiliated" organizations.

Within ten days or two weeks, Dies said, he would present to the president, the state and justice departments and Congressional leaders a bill to require organizations with international affiliations to file their true membership lists.

Saying the proposed bill was "the most important development in the history of the United States," Dies declared, "I'm going to ask the president the direct question of whether he will approve such a measure." He predicted a "sentiment for the bill would be too strong for Congress to resist."

Dies and F. D. R. at Odds

Frequently in the past, Dies has accused the administration of opposing his investigation. When the committee published the Washington mailing list of the American League for Peace and Democracy, F. D. R. was characterized by Dies as "sordid."

Meantime, the American Civil Liberties Union, contending that civil party members are entitled to protection from "exposure to contempt, prejudice or antagonism," has announced that it would aid Communist officials facing contempt charges for refusing to give membership lists to the committee, or answer questions concerning membership.

Dies, director of the league, said, "We defy Mr. Dies or anyone else to give one single reason for requiring the membership lists of the Communist party or any other organization under authority of the resolution creating the Dies Committee."

Thousands Observe Partial Eclipse of Sun in New York

New York, April 7 (AP)—Crowding various points of vantage throughout the city Sunday, thousands of New Yorkers observed a partial eclipse of the sun by the moon, which first became visible at 3:50 p. m. and reached its climax at 5:05 p. m. when sixty-eight per cent of its surface was covered.

As the partial phase of the eclipse occurred, the city took on the appearance of dusk or a very cloudy day. The eclipse itself was visible only to those equipped with dark glasses or a strip of over-exposed film.

The National Broadcasting company telecast the eclipse from the top of the RCA building, making it possible for some radio listeners to view the sight from their homes.

German Planes Downed by French

Paris, April 7 (AP)—The French high command reported tonight five German warplanes were brought down during a day of "very considerable activity in the air."

The high command's regular evening communiqué:

"Some artillery fire in the region west of the Vosges. Very considerable activity in the air. Five enemy planes were brought down, one of them by the Royal Air Force."

In its morning communiqué it said "nothing to report."

More Vitamins in Grass Than in Plants and Vegetables Together

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor

Cincinnati, April 7 (AP)—Man can get more vitamins from grass than from all the other plants and fruits put together. Twelve pounds, dried, of the grass that flies from the lawn-mower contains more vitamins than 340 pounds of fruits and vegetables, which is more fruits and vegetables than the average person eats in one year.

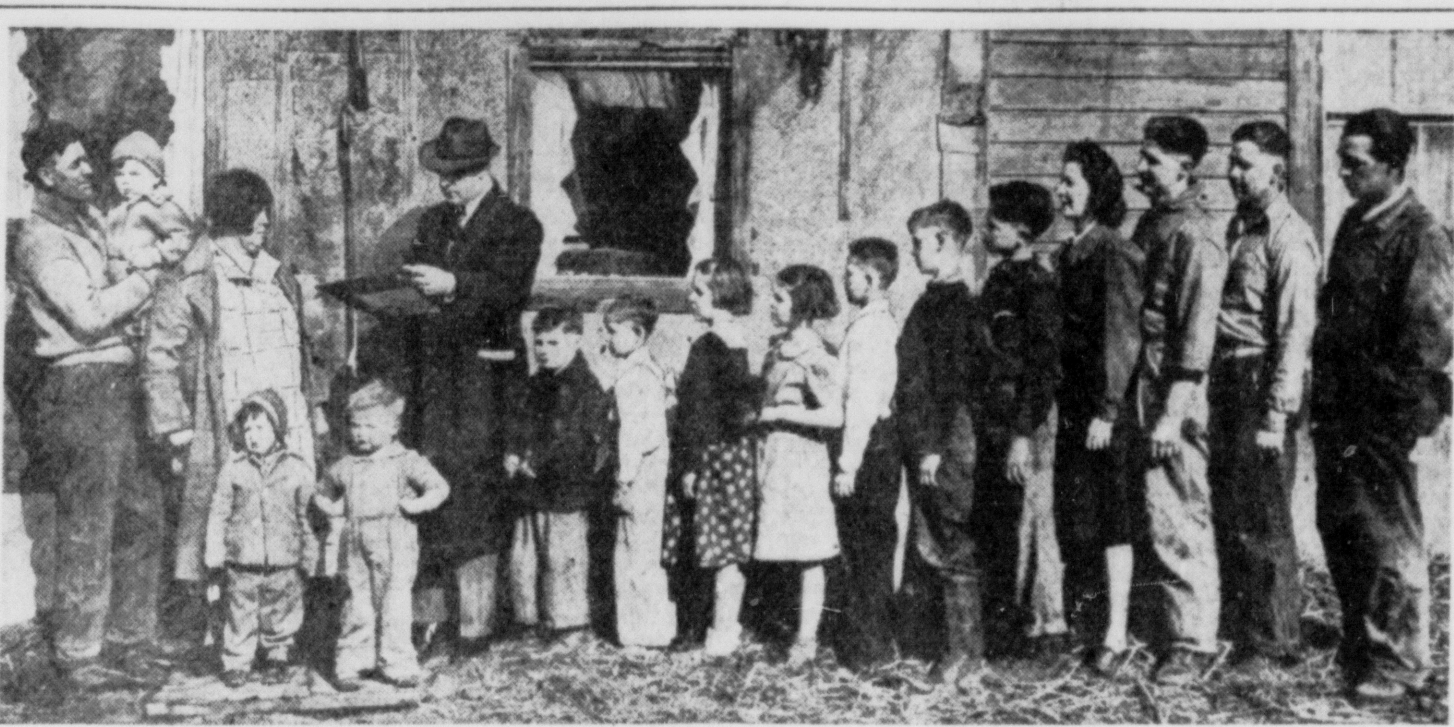

This scientific study, along with methods to make grass powder palatable in pancakes, breakfast foods, bread, cookies, desserts and candy, was made public tonight by the American Chemical Society. The society tomorrow begins a five-day meeting with about 3,500 of the nation's leading chemists attending sessions which will present 450 scientific reports and discoveries.

The man eats grass report was made by W. R. Graham, G. O. Miller and C. F. Schnabel of Kansas City, Mo.

In Synthetic Form

Most of the vitamins in the grass now available in synthetic form, they are comparatively expensive. The report claims that the

Italy Ready for Anything, Il Duce Says in Speech

Prepared to Face Whatever Spring Brings, He Declares

Orvieto, Italy, April 7 (AP)—Premier Mussolini told a cheering crowd today that Italy was ready to face whatever "this late spring brings."

Il Duce spoke briefly to a mass of Blackshirt followers, townspeople and students of an academy for training of Fascist women leaders which he inspected.

The occasion was the first anniversary of the Italian occupation of Albania.

"Events which we are witnessing have great proportions," Mussolini said. "But we believe we are not inadequate for them, even considering their unusual scope."

"Whatever may be the happening which this late spring brings us, Italy will face them. It could not be otherwise because the Italy of the Fascist emblem of the young and resolute which just a year ago liberated a people in three days, and (Continued on Page Two)

Mrs. Mary Whitney To Seek Divorce

Wants Freedom from "Jock" Whitney, New York Sportsman

Reno, Nev., April 7 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney said today she had established residence to divorce John Hay (Jock) Whitney, wealthy New York sportsman, and that suit would be filed "in due course."

The attractive brunette registered at a fashionable downtown hotel, and said she had motored here from Hollywood last night.

The Whitney married in Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1931.

Mrs. Whitney, who arrived at the hotel with her three pet terriers and a German shepherd dog, said she had not determined what charge would be made in the divorce proceedings.

Under Nevada law, she must remain in the state for at least six weeks before filing the suit.

"Mr. Whitney and I have separated and in due course I expect to institute proceedings for a divorce," Mrs. Whitney said in a statement issued through her attorneys, Basil O'Connor of Reno.

"More than three months ago, we entered into an agreement settling all property rights between us. I have nothing further to say either at this time, or for any other time in regard to any of these matters, which I consider purely personal."

German Freighter To Attempt Trip Through Adriatic

Nazis Hope To Pass Through Yugoslav Waters Safely

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, April 7 (AP)—The German freighter Ankara sailed from here secretly at dawn today for a test trip through Yugoslav territorial waters to see whether Germany might establish a blockade-puncturing trade route through the Adriatic Sea.

The Ankara, loaded with 5,000 tons of bauxite, the mineral base of aluminum, headed for Trieste, Italian port 350 miles to the North, from where the cargo might be trans-shipped to Germany by rail.

There have been unconfirmed reports that four British warships were in the Adriatic ready to intercept just such a shipment. Germany was reported to have failed to win Yugoslavia's promise to guard Nazi merchantmen against seizure in her waters.

Many May Use Route

German shipping agents said, however, that if the ship gets through without interference, "many dozens" of German freighters would follow the route. They hinted that Germany might get supplies through neutral territorial waters from points as far away as Russia's Black Sea oil ports.

Yugoslavia was said to hold that bauxite is not a war material and therefore not subject to seizure, although what she would do to uphold this view seemed uncertain. Britain contends that bauxite is a war material and therefore contraband.

(Informed quarters in London said Friday that reports of German shipping activity in the Adriatic were greatly exaggerated and (Continued on Page Two)

Tobey Says Census Will Be Used As Police List by the F. B. I.

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senate general President Roosevelt, however, Tobey (R-NH) said today that he had "learned of a plan conceived by the Department of Justice to transform the 1940 census into a complete police list in the history of the world."

The department, Tobey said in a statement, drafted and submitted secretly to the budget bureau legislation to make census records available to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the intelligence divisions of the army and navy in connection with espionage investigations and other matters relating to national defense.

Drafted Under Murphy

At the justice department, an official told reporters that legislation of that nature was drafted while Frank Murphy, now a supreme court justice, was attorney general.

Four Dead, Heavy Property Damage In So. Louisiana

Loss in Small Town Is Estimated at about $500,000

Amite, La., April 7 (AP)—Tornado winds ripping across southern Louisiana early today brought death to at least four persons, left one missing, injured 27 and caused extensive property damage.

Three were killed here and Mrs. Albert Guillie, 24, was drowned in the picturesque Lafitte bayou Barataria section, 100 miles south, when her houseboat was wrecked. Her husband was still missing late today. Two children, cousins of Guillie, were injured.

Twenty-five of the injured were hurt in the twister here two near Lafitte. Mayor Andrew Morris estimated damage to property here at $500,000. The town has a population of 3,000.

Twelve persons were killed in a tornado at Shreveport March 13 and five in another at Pierre Part, La., a week ago last Friday.

Dictator Must Be Genius of a Sort, Hertzler Asserts

Socialist Gives Results of Study of 35 Such Regimes

Philadelphia, April 7 (AP)—A dictator, says a Nebraska sociologist who has studied thirty-five such regimes, "must be a genius of a sort."

They combine "diabolical cleverness, arrogance, the love for intrigue, unscrupulousness, a bent to war strategy, a fanatical idealism, along with hard-shell realism, and the ability quickly to utilize every advantage," writes Prof. J. O. Hertzler, in the current issue of the American Sociological Review.

"In general, dictators are not the kind of men who would be ruling in normal times. On the whole, whether we like to admit it or not, they are able to do things necessary in normal times, but the man who can organize chaos must be a genius of a sort."

Surveys Ancient Times

In his survey covering the governments of ancient Greece and Rome as well as those of the present, Hertzler says "the close relationship between revolution and dictatorship should be noted particularly."

Exploring not only the reasons behind dictatorship but their governments, Hertzler believes that to be successful, "a dictator must always act as if an emergency existed."

"He must and often does manufacture emergencies to justify his own existence, especially in the form of war and war scares xxx," Hertzler writes.

Taft Puts in Bid For Support from Vt. Republicans

Announces Two Speaking Engagements in Green Mountain State

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senator Taft (R-O) put in a bid today for Vermont's support for the Republican presidential nomination.

Announcing two speaking engagements in Vermont and an intention to visit the birthplace of his grandfather, Alphonso, at West Townsend, Vt., Taft said he hoped to be the state's "favorite grandson" at the Republican national convention.

The Ohio senator will go to Vermont May 4. He is to speak at a mass meeting at Brattleboro and at a convention of Young Republicans at Montpelier.

Vermont's nine delegates to the Republican convention will be picked at a state convention May 23.

Convention delegates are to be selected this week in Illinois, Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa.

Democrats and Republicans in Illinois and Nebraska will register their presidential preferences in primary elections Tuesday.

Announce Drastic Reprisals for Germany's Attacks on Neutral Ships in North Sea

London, April 8 (Monday) (AP)—The British and French governments announced early today that three areas off the Norwegian coast had been mined in their first move to deny Germany the use of territorial waters for the shipment of vital Scandinavian iron ore to Germany's blast furnaces.

The governments, in a broadcast statement, warned that ships entering these territorial waters of Norway did so at their peril, but that the mine laying would not interfere with the free access by Norwegian ships to their own harbors.

The areas mined are off Stadlandet peninsula, Bud, and West Fjord.

Mined Areas Patrolled

The mined areas, the statement said, are being patrolled for forty-eight hours following the laying of the first mine, to prevent Norwegian or other ships from "inadvertently" entering the danger zones.

The text of the statement follows:

"In recent weeks the German campaign against merchant shipping of all nations has been intensified and pursued with even greater brutality than before."

"The number of neutral ships destroyed by German action is now well over 150 and the number of neutral lives lost is nearly 1,000."

"These attacks have been carried out in almost every case in defiance of recognized rules of war, frequently in circumstances of the greatest barbarity and on many occasions without the slightest justification for interference of any sort with the ship."

Yeggs Crack Unlocked Safe, Find It Empty; Reckless Walker Fined

New York, April 7 (AP)—If you lived through April Fool's day and all the other dizzy doings of last week you ought to be good for quite a spell. It was a fantastic week.

Chloe Davis Innocent, Police Chief Believes

Capt. Edwards Says Evidence Shows Mrs. Davis Slew Children

Los Angeles, April 7 (AP)—Bloody foot and hand prints give further evidence, police said today, that Mrs. Lolita Davis, 36, killed three of her children with a hammer and then ended her own life by slashing her wrists.

Capt. Edgar Edwards, chief of the police homicide squad, said the prints found on the walls and floor of the Davis home, were those of Mrs. Davis and not of her eleven-year-old daughter, Chloe.

Police investigators expressed belief that Mrs. Davis beat Daphne, 10, Deborah Ann, 7, and Marquis, 3, to death with a hammer, and then attempted to kill Chloe, who disappeared.

Chloe, held under a suspicion of murder, told investigators her mother, after beating the three children, ordered Chloe to strike her with the hammer and then asked for a razor with which she cut her wrists.

Captain Edwards said Chloe's story of the hours of terror in the Davis home Thursday is now accepted as true.

F. Barton Davis, 51, grocer, is demanding release of his daughter under a habeas corpus writ made returnable tomorrow.

"My little girl told me," he protested, "they are trying to make me tell something and say something that is not true." Then she cried: "I have seen her cry only three times in her life, and I am certain that she has told the truth about the whole thing."

Edwards plans to petition the juvenile court tomorrow to make Chloe a ward of the court, at least pending the final outcome of his investigation.

Better Dairying Planned for Boys

College Park, Md., April 7 (AP)—County and state extension agents again this year will lead a campaign for better dairying methods among 4-H club boys and girls through the national 4-H dairy production demonstration contest.

The contest, covering breeding, growing and feeding of cattle, and milk production, will be open to all club members engaged in dairying. Dates for the contests are to be announced.

Medals will be awarded to winning county teams, and state winners will compete in the finals at the national dairy show October 12-19 in Harrisburg, Pa. Winners there will be awarded college scholarships.

The Pittman house, a brick structure, was destroyed. The winds struck here at 12:19 and traversed a diagonal course across town, damaging badly some 50 buildings in the business section. Huge trees were uprooted, box cars blown from railroad tracks, and telephone and light wires and poles blown down over a wide area.

Ambulances from nearby towns took the injured to the Florida parishes hospital at Independence, six miles away, where physicians and nurses were forced to work without electric lights.

A medical detachment of twelve men from the Mississippi national guard at McComb, 35 miles away, came here to assist the New Orleans Red Cross in relief work.

Most seriously injured were Mr. and Mrs. Tule C. Keen and their two daughters, Dora and Nelda; Mrs. Mrs. Buren Bennett, Miss Hollis Birch, Mrs. Eugene Thompson, Mrs. A. A. McNay, Inez Boyd and Miss Nina Spiller.

Structures destroyed included the Catholic and Methodist churches, rebuilt after a disastrous tornado killed fifty persons and injured 150 in this area April 24, 1938.

Since 1898 some sixty-odd tornadoes in Louisiana have taken 343 lives and caused $5,000,000 damage.

Indicating that the registration bill might be the final remedy for Committee on un-American activities has been seeking in more than two years of hearings. Dies said that the House legislative bureau would be asked to start drafting the measure tomorrow.

He said he would inspect a similar proposal by Representative Voorhis (D-Calif.) and that the two bills might be combined. Intended to supplement the existing law requiring registration of foreign agents, Voorhis' plan would merely authorize the secretary of state to require registration of internationally allied groups.

Dies said he would have such organizations register, file membership lists, accounts, and names of officers, to be supplemented by periodic reports. He would impose heavy penalties for refusal to comply, the maximum to be outlawing the offending party.

Charge Germany in 1937 Planned War To Conquer Europe

London, April 7 (AP)—The ministry of information today issued an alleged German "secret map" which it said showed that German leaders in 1937 had prepared a ten-year plan to conquer Europe.

It said it showed that Germany planned to take Austria and Czechoslovakia in 1938 and to add progressively to her conquests until "before 1948 Hitler's hordes of grabbing gangsters would have seized Scandinavia and Portugal" and also Great Britain.

The ministry asserted the alleged map was found by Czech police in a raid in 1938 in Prague on headquarters of Konrad Henlein, then Sudeten German leader.

Maps purporting to show German plans for conquering Europe circulated before the outbreak of the European conflict.

Significance was seen here in that release of the map was timed to coincide with a British-French campaign to convince Europe's small neutrals that they should, in their own interests, cooperate with the Allies in tightening the blockade of Germany.

$200 Machine Helps Combat Peritonitis

Omaha, April 7 (AP)—X-Ray treatment of peritonitis, developed from a $200 machine he designed himself, is helping Dr. James F. Kelly of Creighton University force down mortality rates from this dreaded inflammation.

Dr. Kelly, professor of roentgenology at Creighton, treated his first case of peritonitis with X-rays in 1934. He says the work is still in the "early clinical stage" but mortality rates among his patients treated since then have dropped from about 62 per cent to only 21.3 per cent.

How the rays produce their life saving result is not specifically known.

One theory, the specialist explains, is that the rays break down white blood cells, releasing antibodies capable of killing the bacteria which cause the inflammation.

Dr. Kelly explains his interest in peritonitis grew out of his work on X-Ray treatment of gas gangrene.

But to treat peritonitis, he needed a different type of equipment. Unable to buy it, he designed a unit himself and had it built here.

"I'm ashamed to tell you how much it cost," he smiles. "Only $200—for assembling junk."

Millions Witness Eclipse of Sun; Pictures Taken

Astronomers and Scientists See Five-Minute Performance

Jacksonville, Fla., April 7 (AP)—Menacing clouds along the southern ring eclipse path cleared away just in time today to give millions of persons their first chance in seventy-five years to see such a phenomenon.

The eclipse, caused by the moon coming between the earth and the sun, started at daybreak far out in the Pacific ocean and entered the United States at Big Bend, Tex., at 4:40 p. m. It headed over the Atlantic ocean after a five-minute performance here at 5:13 p. m.

Millions of laymen joined astronomers and other scientists in peering at the fiery ring as it covered its 2,000-mile long path in about thirty minutes.

What the average man saw was the moon gradually moving over the face of the sun until nothing was left but a thin rim of orange light.

Not Blacked Out
The moon did not entirely black out the sun because the sun was comparatively close to the earth, while the moon was farther away than ordinarily. The relative distance resulted in the ring phenomenon which will not be seen again in this country until May, 1994.

From an airplane 16,200 feet above the ground, there was a pearly gray cast to billowy clouds below and a sunset glow on heavy, darker clouds on the horizon.

Clouds, which throughout the morning threatened to spoil the show, opened up at several places along the eclipse path to give observers a clear view.

New Orleans reported perfect weather, and some observers said the shadows of trees during the eclipse looked like "double exposures" on a photographic film. That was an expected feature which probably was noticed in other places.

Annular Phase Visible

The full, ring phase—known to astronomers as the annular phase—was visible where skies were clear in an area about seventy-five miles both north and south of a center line which touched San Antonio, Tex., New Orleans, Pensacola, Tallahassee and Jacksonville, Fla.

The rest of the United States and Canada saw a partial eclipse in which the moon covered varying amounts of the sun's surface.

In the annular phase, ninety-three per cent of the sun's diameter was obscured. The light was about 100 times that of a full moon.

Astronomers and physicists set up elaborate instruments throughout the path to study a wide range of scientific factors connected with solar rays.

These rays can be studied only when the sun is in eclipse, because they are too intense for practically all instruments when the full solar power is on.

A United States army bomber drove 34,800 feet into the stratosphere to photograph the event with the nation's largest and newest aerial camera.

Major George W. Goddard, chief of the army's photographic branch at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, reported when he landed at the airport that his bomber's thermometer registered thirty-four degrees below zero at the highest altitude.

census bureau therefore urged the budget bureau "not to have the proposed bill sent to Congress, where, obviously, it would be available to the press."

"But," Tobey asserted, "the important consideration is that the Department of Justice has asked for this legislation. It has been held up for the time being and has only come to light despite the precautions of secrecy taken by the Department of Justice."

"When the census inquisition has been completed, we may well expect the administration to exert its efforts for this new power."

Sen. Adams Offers Plan for Treasury To Meet Demands
Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senator Adams (D-Colo.) proposed today that Congress avoid the question of a general increase in the statutory debt limit by authorizing the treasury to borrow money to meet specific appropriations.

This could be accomplished, he said, by inserting in appropriations bills an amendment authorizing the treasury to borrow money to meet that appropriation.

Although this would be an indirect method of increasing the debt limit, Adams called it preferable to making "deceptive" appropriations.

He explained that by "deceptive" appropriations he had reference to the possibility that Congress may make total appropriations at this session exceeding next year's revenue and the remaining borrowing power of the treasury.

Sen. Adams Offers Plan for Treasury To Meet Demands

Would Borrow Money for Specific Appropriations by Congress

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senator Adams (D-Colo.) proposed today that Congress avoid the question of a general increase in the statutory debt limit by authorizing the treasury to borrow money to meet specific appropriations.

This could be accomplished, he said, by inserting in appropriations bills an amendment authorizing the treasury to borrow money to meet that appropriation.

Although this would be an indirect method of increasing the debt limit, Adams called it preferable to making "deceptive" appropriations.

He explained that by "deceptive" appropriations he had reference to the possibility that Congress may make total appropriations at this session exceeding next year's revenue and the remaining borrowing power of the treasury.

Public Debt Near Limit
The public debt now is only about two and one-half billion dollars short of the $45,000,000,000 statutory limit. President Roosevelt's budget, which proposed $460,000,000 of new taxes, contemplated a deficit next fiscal year which would leave the debt about $60,000,000 shy of the limit. Congress, however, has shown no disposition to levy new taxes and appropriations are running at just about budget figures.

"No appropriation should pass without there being provision for the money to meet it, after the treasury has reached the limit of its borrowing power," Adams declared.

The Colorado Senator said that some action on the question of increasing the debt limit, or levying new taxes, may become necessary in consideration of the relief appropriations, since many Congressmen have indicated dissatisfaction with the $85,000,000 WPA expenditure proposed in the president's budget.

May Ask for More Money
The president, too, was reported to be doubtful whether this amount would be enough, and to be leaning toward a proposal that the sum be made available for expenditure in eight months, if necessary, instead of a full year.

The eight-months plan would avoid an immediate revision of the budget, but might necessitate a later supplemental appropriation.

Adams said he thought that Congress had "an obligation to decently take care of relief, but it shouldn't attempt to fool the public and itself."

"We ought to get a fair, honest estimate of what seems to be required for relief needs and make an appropriation for a full year," he said. "Then we should make provision to raise that money. There would be no use putting it down on paper when we couldn't translate it into bread."

Supporting Adams' stand for a full year appropriation, Senator Austin (R-Vt.) said he would prefer new taxes to finance relief rather than an increase in the debt limit.

Economy advocates, meanwhile, were none too enthusiastic about the possibility of making any savings in the remaining appropriations bills to be considered.

The Senate appropriations committee will resume work tomorrow on a war department civil functions bill, already boosted $74,900,000 by a subcommittee to provide $30,000,000 for flood control, $25,000,000 for new rivers and harbors projects, $15,000,000 to start a third set of Panama canal locks and other minor items.

The Senate itself is scheduled to act on a $23,000,000 legislative appropriations bill.

balloting. Mr. Roosevelt led Garner three to one in a similar expression in Wisconsin last Tuesday.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who captured Wisconsin's twenty-four delegates to the Republican convention in a contest with Senator Vandenberg, is unopposed on the Republican preferential ticket in Illinois.

Illinois has fifty-eight delegates in the Republican and in the Democratic national conventions, but only fifty will be chosen Tuesday. Eight delegates-at-large for each party will be selected later. Both parties will nominate candidates for senator, representatives and state offices.

Test in Nebraska
Nebraska will provide a sequel to the Wisconsin Dewey-Vandenberg contest. The names of both are entered in a preferential primary. Nebraska, too, will elect delegates to the national conventions. Each party will choose four at large and two in each of the five congressional districts.

Republicans of Missouri's third Congressional district will pick two delegates on Wednesday. Similar Republican conventions will be held in other districts on Friday.

Iowa will hold its Republican state convention Friday to name twenty-two delegates.

titled to destroy any neutral ship enroute to any British port, including contraband control harbors, and there have moreover been repeated cases of vessels being destroyed on voyages between neutral ports when the vessel had no intention of touching at a British port at all.

Scores German Government
It is obvious that the German government are engaged in an indiscriminate campaign of destruction throughout waters in which their unnotified mines are laid or in which their submarines are in a position to operate.

"While in recent weeks the greatest losses have fallen upon neutral shipping, British and Allied vessels have also suffered from adoption of this policy of destruction, a new development of which is bombing from the air of British and neutral trawlers and fishing boats and the machine gunning of their crews."

"The innocent character of the fishing boats has hitherto been universally recognized but this has not prevented Germany from committing nearly 200 attacks on fishing vessels aimed at sinking them and murdering their crews."

Lightships Bombed
"Even lightships, the object of which is to protect shipping of all nations, and which are by international usage treated as non-combatants, have been with their crews ruthlessly attacked by bombs."

"It is a fact deserving of constant emphasis that these German attacks have been deliberately aimed at destruction of neutral lives and property and it is abundantly clear that the purpose behind them is pure terrorism."

"The Allies, on the other hand, have never destroyed nor injured a single neutral ship or taken a single neutral life. On the contrary they have not only saved the lives of many innocent victims of these German outrages but they have also not failed to rescue from drowning German airmen and submarine crews who have been guilty of the inhumanities in question."

Both Bud and Stadlandet Peninsula are on the west coast of Norway, and both are south of Narvik, Norwegian port for the loading of Swedish ore. The mines, therefore, presumably would block German ore ships from using the waters close inshore for passage to the Reich.

Stadlandet is about 120 miles north of Bergen, farthest point south in northern Europe at which United States ships are now allowed to call under the neutrality act. Bud is about 80 miles farther north.

Sharp Advance Marks Burst of Buying on the Stock Exchange

Many Issues Are Back on the Bull Market Ladder

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, April 7 (AP)—Minus the fanfare of the September war upsurge, stocks have clambered back on the bull market ladder.

Last week the market showed a burst of speed on the upside after shaking off the inertia of the quietest winter on the stock exchange in many years.

As the buying filtered through the list, branching out from steels and motors, transactions became the heaviest since the September war boom. The week's turnover was 7,369,520 shares against 4,837,558 the previous week.

The advance, the best for any week since October, lifted the Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks close to the January top. Many issues rang up new highs for the year or longer and excited talk among chart-reading theorists of an enduring bull swing.

Since the 1937 collapse of an "inflation" movement, followed by an April rally two years ago, stocks have made a series of short thrusts into higher levels. Each time the market has fallen back part the way. Stocks, consequently, have swung the last two years in the narrowest orbit the chart makers have traced since 1925-29 rise introduced a decade of tremendous fluctuations in share prices.

The excited spurge of "war buying" in September repeated this jabbing advance, followed by the almost lifeless markets of the winter months.

Supporting the rise in stocks, the steel operating rate had its widest upturn since January. Textile buying broadened in a spring revival following several months of small demand, during which mills worked off much of the unfilled orders taken in the autumn war splash. The Associated Press industrial index turned up after eleven weeks of decline.

The Federal Housing Administration forecast a twelve-year peak in home construction this year. The New York Central announced purchase of $10,000,000 of new locomotives and freight cars, the biggest rail equipment order of the new year. Air line travel shot up to new records.

It is obvious that the German government are engaged in an indiscriminate campaign of destruction throughout waters in which their unnotified mines are laid or in which their submarines are in a position to operate.

THE DAILY STORY

AT LIBERTY

He Wears the Cloak of Greatness for a Brief Moment but Finds It Threadbare

BY A. D. WILLS

George Eckland formerly of Eckland and Turner an act well liked by theater goers of another decade and sometimes noted in Variety and Billboard as "comics rivaling Weber and Fields," walked down Michigan avenue meditating on the strange vagaries of fate. Like many successful vaudeville artists, Mr. Eckland had been displaced by the advent of radio.

Memories of 25 years in show business drifted through his mind. Yes, he had been up there with the best of them. His descent from the manumission of his agents, the widow, was a bitter pill. He hadn't been in the United States for a long time. He was a key man.

Confound it, Mr. Eckland said to himself, a fine trick that was. Leaving his partner in the lurch. It was a fine trick, that's what it was. In the end, after all he'd done for his partner.

Oh, sure, Mr. Eckland conceded. Turner had offered him a job later on, but he wasn't a guy to accept favors from somebody like that. It was the principle of the thing. Mr. Eckland felt rather noble about it.

Everything that followed in those 25 years—the "also ran" billings, the treachery of his agents, the widening gap between work and money, the nagging wife, that perpetual "At Liberty" ad in show business journals—seemed in retrospect one long martyrdom to truth.

He was interrupted by a hand clapped firmly on his shoulder.

"What's going on?" Eckland asked. "Just been here a little while," said Turner.

"How are things going?" Eckland found himself asking. "Fine," said Turner. "There's a swell bar down the street. Let's have a couple for old times' sake."

The cocktail lounge was one of the better places. Turner always liked things plushy and fancy. "Not a bad dump," said Turner approvingly.

"Yep," Eckland replied. "Nice quiet place to come after tough rehearsals. So relaxing."

"So you're still acting?" Turner asked. "Yeah... it's in the blood. I could make more dough in the business end of it—but the money ain't everything."

He watched sharply for Turner's reaction. Turner seemed thoughtful.

"Yeah, you're right. The money ain't everything. Look at Bernstein. He gets an in with Colossal Pictures. Clicks with Hearts of the World and he's pulling down a hundred grand a year. Builds himself a regular palace on the seashore—then he cracks up—health shot to pieces."

"But he's okay again, isn't he?" Eckland asked. "Oh, sure. I saw him just a few months ago. He wanted me to come in with him. But there wasn't enough dough in his proposition."

At the mention of money a pleasant warmth stole through Eckland's veins. Good old money. A four-flusher in some ways. But he always could make things move. It was sure nice to be back in an atmosphere of success again. Eckland had known failure too long.

"How did you happen to come back East?" Eckland asked. "You know the picture business. Keeps you moving around all the time."

Eckland wondered how he could steer the conversation into profitable channels.

"Just what are you doing?" Eckland asked hopefully.

Oh, I'm representing a Wall Street group who want to reorganize Consolidated. When that breaks I'll really be on easy street.

"You mean you'll be a big shot in Consolidated?"

"Sure." Eckland cast him an envious glance, but quickly retrieved it. "Sounds good," he said.

"Yeah, it's all right," Turner seemed unenthusiastic. "Yknow, he continued, "sometimes I like to be back on the boards. We sure had a lot of fun in the old act."

"We sure did!"

The waitress brought more drinks and conversation flowed freely. They recalled old times with hearty laughter. The ups and downs of show business received professional treatment. But there never seemed to be a right moment to put the touch on Turner.

At a quarter of 4 Turner pulled out his watch.

"Holy smoke," he said. "I've got an appointment at 4 Gotta breeze." Eckland recalled that he, too, had a 4 o'clock appointment. But he was determined to keep his quarry within reach for future reference.

"Where are you staying, Art?" he asked.

"At the Drake. But I'm in and out. Just drop me a note there and I'll get in touch with you."

Eckland fumbled feebly for the check. For a moment his heart sank—then Turner snatched up the paper with a flourish.

"Thanks a lot, old boy," Eckland said as they separated outside. "The next'll be on me. See you later."

Eckland walked with new jauntness and confidence. Something told him the big break was coming at last. Consolidated Players. Could you beat that! With Turner a key man in that outfit he could write his own ticket. And Turner owed him a debt of gratitude. No wonder his ex-partner was so friendly. He wanted to make up for that dirty deal of years ago.

Eckland came rudely back to reality when he saw the battered building which was his destination.

The Emergency Relief Station. What a come down! If Turner had known about this—

He exchanged perfunctory greetings with the policeman at the door and took his place in the line of shabby "clients" waiting for dispensations from window "A."

Then he noted something familiar about the man in front of him. Clothes must too flashy for this place. A certain air of swagger. For a moment he was stunned.

But there could be no mistake about it. Art Turner, too was "At Liberty."

Norwegians and Swedes Plan To Form an Alliance

Increased Pressure by Bel-ligerents Strengthens Demands

Oslo, April 7 (AP)—Increasing Allied and German pressure on Scandinavian neutrality appeared today to be strengthening internal demands in Norway and Sweden for a defense alliance backed by arms and bombing planes.

Such an alliance was pointed to in informed quarters as the best means of defending the neutrality of the northern countries while a war-torn public awaited news of the contents of the latest British notes to Norway and Sweden, delivered Friday.

(Talk of a Swedish-Norwegian-Finnish defense alliance arose in Scandinavia immediately after the Russian-Finnish peace on March 13, but ended abruptly after Tass, the official Soviet news agency, stated on March 20 that such an alliance would be interpreted by Moscow as being "aimed against the U.S.S.R. and would directly contradict the peace treaty" between Russia and Finland.)

Order 600 Warplanes

Indications that Norway and Sweden regard strength as necessary to preserve their neutrality were seen in a Stockholm newspaper report that the two countries had ordered 600 warplanes in the United States for immediate delivery.

The paper predicted that Norway and Sweden together would buy at least 1,000 pursuit and bombing planes in the United States within the next few weeks.

Indication that the flood of demands from both the Allies and Germany were forcing Norway and Sweden to take a firmer stand was seen in the gloomy statement by Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht in parliament yesterday that any attempt by the Allies to stop free Norwegian shipping to Germany would force Norway into war.

With increasing frequency and forcefulness, influential Norwegian sources have termed a defensive alliance as the only means by which the small northern countries can cope with the situation with any degree of success.

Have Joint Problem

These quarters point out that Sweden and Norway have a joint problem in meeting British demands for stoppage of Swedish iron ore shipments to Germany. During the winter most of the ore, though Swedish, was shipped to Germany through the northern Norwegian port of Narvik and thence down Norway's Atlantic coast.

While the Scandinavian countries have sought a quiet way out of their difficulties, there has been mounting public ire over the increased pressure of the Allies as well as over the consistent torpedoing and bombing of the northern countries shipping.

Informed quarters said that this anger has increased demands for a stiff joint Scandinavian stand for the rights of these nations as neutrals.

Planes Collide, 2 Pilots Killed

Sidney, O., April 7 (AP)—Two small airplanes collided in midair in a drizzling rain today, killing their pilots, Robert E. Shrader, 28, of Dayton, and Jack Whitmer, 19, of Tipppecanoe City, O.

Shrader's plane fell in flames eight miles north of here, his body burned almost beyond recognition. Whitmer's craft, crippled by the loss of a wing, crashed 100 yards away, only twenty-five feet from a farm house.

Herbert Blue, a farmer who saw the accident, said Shrader's plane appeared to swoop down on top of Whitmer's, then plummet straight to the ground. Both ships were flying at low altitude because of poor visibility.

The two fliers took off from Vanadalia, O., this morning for a circuit tour of several western Ohio cities. They had visited Greenville and Lima and were headed toward Dayton when the crash occurred.

Planting Gladiolus Cornels

The small cornels saved when the gladiolus were dug up last fall should be planted separately in the vegetable or cutting garden this year.

Since the young shoots from the cornels will look like coarse grass, one should place a stake at the head of each row of cornels, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Plant the cornels 2 inches deep in a trench, as illustrated, just as you would garden peas.

The cornels are protected by a hard shell, which makes it difficult for moisture to penetrate them. Therefore, to facilitate germination, soak the cornels overnight before planting.

Cornels planted in good soil will produce regular crops capable of producing blossoms the next season. Cornel culture is an economical way to keep one's gladiolus stock young.

Republicans Want Special Group To Form Trade Plans

Would Have Committee Named To Formulate New Program

Washington, April 7 (AP)—A group of House Republicans advanced today a proposal to create a special committee representing both Congress and the public to formulate a new American foreign trade program.

Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, the House unit in which originates tax and tariff legislation, announced the proposal in a statement and said it was backed by all Republican members of the committee. He added that a resolution for creation of the committee would be introduced tomorrow.

The special fifteen-man committee, Treadway said, would be instructed to report to Congress not later than January 15, 1941, recommendations for "a permanent tariff and foreign trade program along specified lines" to be administered by an independent agency in compliance with clearly-defined instructions from the Congress.

The House Republican proposal would go somewhat farther in its objectives than one offered recently by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.). Vandenberg proposed abolition of the tariff commission and the setting up of a new six-man agency empowered to coordinate the foreign commercial and financial activities of government agencies.

The fifteen-man study committee would be constituted as follows:

Five senators appointed by the president.

Five representatives designated by the speaker of the House.

Five persons appointed by the president, subject to confirmation by the Senate, "none of whom holds any office in the government of the United States or is engaged in the activities of any political party."

At least one would represent agriculture, one labor, one industry and one the consumers.

Gillette Reports Wire Tapping in Political Battles

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senator Gillette (D-Ia.), chairman of the special Senate committee appointed to police this year's elections, disclosed today that his committee had received "several complaints" that wire tapping was being used in current political campaigns.

"We have not determined whether there is any substance to these complaints as yet," the Senator said. "If there is we will turn them over to the special committee under Senator Stewart (D-Tenn.)."

Gillette referred to the special Senate committee directed to investigate "wire tapping" which now has two investigators looking into complaints in Rhode Island.

There had been reports earlier that this committee had received complaints of political espionage, but Stewart said he knew nothing of them.

Gillette said he "did not feel free to disclose" where the wire-tapping complaints were from or what elections they involved.

Stewart said his committee hoped to begin public hearings "within the next two weeks."

A federal grand jury has been investigating reported tampering with wires in the Rhode Island attorney general's office.

Stewart said his committee also would look into complaints from Pennsylvania and Chicago.

"I'd better not talk about the Chicago matter because it's still in the hearsay stage," he added.

Girls Gloriously Aglitter

HANDS ACROSS THE TABLE... highlight the new luminous nail polish.

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS ARE all aglitter. Hair must glisten, finger-nails must shine, eyes must sparkle, lips be moist and creamy. Only the impermanent nose carries the dull finish. Some of the dearhearts are polishing their cheeks, applying cream rouge and following with a friction. Sumpin' allus doin'.

Luminous nail polishes are a cute fancy. They make finger-nails look like shining sea shells, especially the new pinks and corals. The rich, deep reds that girls won't give up are working along toward the ruby shades. Other jewel-like applications are white pearl, emerald, onyx and sapphire.

You can wear jewels to match your finger-tips or you can have your talons match your robe, whichever fancy your little heart cherishes—something to think about this season when the color ensemble is being stressed. All too often, my hearties, have we seen lip pigment, rouge and finger-nail polish fighting like cats and dogs, and frock and chapeau fighting all three of them. It's nice to be fuzzy, to plan, think things out. That practice creates the well-dressed woman who is a delight to the optic meters.

These opalescent preparations won't irritate your fellow bridge players; they'll love them. They're distinctive and not conspicuous. They have a feminine appeal because they are dainty.

TYPES OF STRONG HANDS

WHEN YOU hold a powerful hand at the left of the opening bidder, your job is twofold—to proclaim it to your partner and also indicate just what kind of strong hand you possess. Otherwise, your side may land in the wrong declaration. Your chief weapons in such cases are: (1) An informative or takeout double. (2) A No-Trump bid. (3) A jump bid in one of your suits, and (4) a bid of the opponent's suit.

With neither side vulnerable, and the dealer having bid 1-Heart, if you held the above hands, your best action, in line with the practice used by the finest players, would be to double with 1, 2 or 3, bid 1-No Trump with 4, 2-Spades with 5 and 2-Hearts with 6.

Parents Should Follow Plan in Spanking Child

Punishment Should Take Place Immediately after Disobedience

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

You who have been reading this column have observed that I advocate spanking the child under four or five years of age—not the older child—as a means of teaching inhibitions in respect to safety, even in respect to care of property and others' rights.

But those who spank—and practically all parents do, whether they believe in it or not—do so, as a rule, without any definitely thought-out plan.

Provided you do not believe in spanking, be ashamed of yourself to be so weak in character as not to be able to stand by your conviction.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

"YOU MUSTN'T come," I objected when Miss Markham volunteered to join the hunt for my kidnaper. "It would be too dangerous."

"Why?"

"He already has sent me a threat, warning me to keep off his trail. He delivered it at your house," I told her how the note had come through the window. "And I have reason to believe that a similar threat led to a suicide last night, so you see, he means business."

Her brown eyes were wide with alarm. "Bill, why didn't you tell me?"

"That was something for the police, not for you."

"But I am the sister of the man who was murdered."

"That's a cruel word. Are we even sure of it?"

"You mean, there's a chance it wasn't murder? It might have been—"

"I have no theory," I said hastily. "Theories are dangerous. Look at Belzer. Well, here's our cab. Will you reconsider?"

"No," she was firm.

"All right. To the driver I said, 'The Rio Vista club.'"

He took the order without question. There was nothing strange in a young couple driving to the Rio Vista club at this late hour of the afternoon. The sun was near setting. It would soon be dinner time, and the club's diners, if not its liquors, were popular.

"What do you hope to discover at the club?" the girl asked me.

"I really don't know," I confessed, "but it is a place to begin. Belzer thought there was some connection between that boatman—the fellow who kidnapped me—and the operation of the club. He spoke of the possibility of a gang working there."

"It sounds fantastic."

"I know. But that fellow was waiting for someone in the garden. I'm sure of it. And if he was, he was waiting for someone who worked for the club or was a guest there. I would say it might have been the cook's helper he was waiting for, but Tony Pappini said the boy went home early. He was the one who committed suicide last night."

"How horrible!"

"That boatman is a potential killer. Even though he may not have murdered your brother, if we can hang the crime on him we'll be doing society a favor."

"So the first thing you want to do is to find out who he intended to meet?"

"That's right. We'll assume that he had no connection with your brother's death. What was he looking for?"

The girl bit her lips. "Suppose this man had no more connection with my brother's death than Jerry Montcalm had?"

"I say—what difference does it make? He is a killer. He tried to kill me."

The girl nodded. "He must be the man we're looking for. He must! Whom shall we question?"

"I think we'd best start with the cook."

We arrived at the club at an hour when I would have expected to see a number of cars parked within the shrub encircled parking area on the north side of the peninsula, but there were only three cars.

"Looks like a quiet night," the taxi driver commented as he accepted his fare. "Quietest I've ever seen it here this time of the evening."

Louise was clutching my arm tightly as we climbed the wide steps. I knew what she was thinking. Not long ago her brother had climbed these steps, for the last time.

No one was in the dining room. A boy in uniform—I suppose he had been hired to replace the cook's helper—informed us there were sandwiches, if we wished to eat, but no dinner. "Sorry," he said. "The cook's ill. We're trying to get someone else, but I don't think we'll have much luck before 7 o'clock."

"Anything serious?" I asked, thinking it strange that the club would announce the sickness of the man who prepared its meals. It wouldn't tend to help business, to say the least.

"We don't know what it is," said the boy. "I think he's gone off his nut. They say he's been actin' queer for a couple of days."

I remembered how he had burst into tears over Alfred's death. "Maybe he's upset about the—"

"The murder, sir? That's what I think. He'll snap out of it."

"Could we—see him?" Louise asked. Her fingers were clamping after. After the child has obtained pleasure from doing something several times, think of the degree and frequency of pain it will take to keep him from repeating the act again. Anything which promises him more pleasure than pain he will do. It is unlikely to avoid the act if he is spanked only occasionally for it, getting satisfaction for the deed at numerous other times. There must be no exceptions.

Famphlets on Spanking

To repeat, effective spanking must be immediate upon the first offense—certainly upon the second—and without exception. Therefore, you would not use spanking or any other kind of bodily pain to prevent such habits as thumb-sucking, nail-biting, bed-wetting, masturbation.

"To Spank or Not to Spank: When and How," is the title of one of the fifteen pamphlets I have written on practical ways of dealing with the baby and young child. You may get a list of these pamphlets, together with a list of books on the young child, by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

In most instances, however, the child over three or four should not get pain on the first offense. The offense should be defined and pain for the second offense announced then and certainly applied thereafter.

Don't spank just to make your self feel better for the moment. Perhaps ninety per cent of spanking is for no other reason. You will not so punish a child unless you have, preferably with both parents agreeing, planned long before-hand the type of instances for which you would spank.

Make It Immediate

Don't spank unless it can be immediate. If the child of two has run out into the street, it is too late to spank him after you have carried him into the house. It may even be too late when you have captured him.

It is of no use to punish a runaway child after he has been found. Merely bring him back. Show him exactly where the deadline is—the gate, stone, tree, pole or mark on the sidewalk. Then be right on hand every time he has the opportunity to cross that line, in order to give him immediate pain if and when he does. Don't punish him for being caught; connect the pain with crossing the line.

And how about it is to punish a little child, after arriving home, for bad conduct at the grocery? How stupid the tattling mother and brutal father of the young child who is punished in the evening for an offense committed at noon! Many an innocent infant never knows what the spanking is for. It must be immediate to be effective.

To get best results from bodily pain should immediately follow the first act to be prevented, and every one thereafter.

Physician Says Patience Needed To Cure Anorexia

Lack of Appetite Is Found in the Majority of Children

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What can be done for babies and children who have no appetite?

Anorexia, or lack of appetite, is found in the majority of children seen by the general practitioner or the children's specialist, in some form or other. It may be real or imaginary. In the latter case it depends on the failure of the child to conform to standards set up by the parents. We are all inclined to create a sort of dietetic mold for children into which they may or may not fit.

Lack of appetite is, of course, a part of the prodrome of all contagious, infectious fevers. It may be an indication that the diet is not balanced.

Anorexia is serious when it lasts from three to six months and results in a steady loss of weight. One particular vitamin, vitamin B, is supposed to influence appetite and to be responsible for lack of appetite when the diet is unbalanced. It may help to give very small doses of vitamin B to a child with sickle appetite.

In order to overcome lack of appetite which depends upon emotional or nervous factors, the parent must make a careful and conscientious search for stress or maladjustment in the child's life. Patience, and plenty of it, must be used, and it is particularly important not to call attention to the symptom and not to badger the child, urging it to eat. In most cases, the condition will correct itself.

Next in frequency to migraine are nervous headaches due to overstrain, emotional maladjustment and lack of knowledge of how to relax.

High blood pressure sometimes causes headaches.

The most frequent form of headache is so-called migraine.

Next in frequency to migraine are nervous headaches due to overstrain, emotional maladjustment and lack of knowledge of how to relax.

What are the causes of headaches?

A great many headaches are caused by nasal obstruction. An example is the case of a woman of thirty, who thought she had had migraine since the age of fourteen.

An examination of the nose showed a suspicious spur on the upper part of the nasal septum, which touched one of the turbinate bones. It seemed a very small cause for half a lifetime of semi-invalidism, but as soon as the defect was corrected the result was good. In making this correction it was found that the nasal passages were obstructed quite considerably in many places.

A blocked sinus will cause headaches.

Eye strain will produce a particular kind of headache. It comes on in the evening. These headaches come from need of glasses or the use of badly-fitted glasses. Very

Breaks Tie as Mangrum Can Do No Better Than 74

By BILL BONT

Augusta, Ga., April 7. (AP)—Jimmy Demaret, who takes everything with a grin, good or bad, broke out into his extra-special face-wide smile today when he accepted a check for $1,500 that represented victory in the seventh annual Augusta Masters' Golf Tournament.

"Laughing Boy," the man who was carrying most of the pressure on this final day of the four-day championship, never showed a trace of strain as he toured the Augusta National Golf Club course in 71, one under par. This gave him a 72-hole total of 280 that was only one shot higher than the record set a year ago by Ralph Guldahl.

Late Finishers Rally

While he was playing beautiful golf all the way around—he had seventeen pars and one birdie—the late who had been with him in the race up to the 54-hole mark were folding up all over the lot. Lloyd Mangrum took a two-over-par that gave him second money of $800 on a 284; Craig Wood and Sam Snead, who had been tied at 212, remained that way as they struggled around in 76 each for 288, and Henry Picard, starting the day four strokes back of Demaret, also wound up with 288 on a final-round 75.

This combination of poor rounds let four strong finishers come in between Mangrum and the 288 shooters. Open Champion Byron Nelson's 70 gave him 285 for third place and $600, while Harry Cooper fired a 70 and home pro Ed Dudley and Willie Goggin of San Francisco each shot 71's, to bracket all three of them at 287.

Puts on Great Finish

Demaret put on a great finish before a crowd estimated at 10,000, the biggest in the tournament's history. He got into trouble only once on the tricky third hole, and recovered from that to save his par. With a few breaks on putts, he might have won even more decisively.

Mangrum, off line more than he'd been at any time in the tournament, had been putting trouble, particularly Wood also hit some bad shots and as the final blow took three putts on the eighteen green when two would have given him 287 and meant a difference of several hundred dollars.

Demaret started on the first day by taking second place with a 87 to Mangrum's record 84. With a 72 to Mangrum's 75 on the second round, he was tied for the lead at 56 holes. Yesterday he shot a two-under-par 70 to the Oak Park (Ill.) assistant pro 71, to take a one-stroke margin and today he came down the home stretch like a thoroughbred.

St. Luke's pinner, who added the last half championship of the City Church League to the first half crown to open the season title, will oppose a loop All-Star team this evening at 7:30 in a three-game total pin match on the Central Y. M. C. A. alleys.

The All-Star team will be composed of Ray Reynolds, Roy Ammons and Thomas Hopwood of the Y. M. C. A. outfit and Lambert Blume and Ellis Batdorf of Central. The league's annual banquet will be held next Thursday evening starting at 6:15 at the "Y".

In final last-half matches this week on the "Y" paths, Y. M. C. A. beat St. Luke's 2-1, Trinity took two from Centre Street, Central scored a sweep over the Church Reserve and Grace M. E. won by forfeit over St. Paul's.

The best scores were made by two "Y" dummies—Hopwood with 520 and Reynolds with 512-522. Armbruster of St. Luke's had 489, J. Hull of Grace rolled 476 and Howell of Trinity checked in a 468. The summaries:
